“ Hi Shirley and Rhonda. Haven't heard from anyone for a long time. Sorry to hear about Joe. Losing parents are hard enough, but losing siblings is even harder. Hope time has made this a little easier. Knowing we'll see him again is always comforting through the grace of Jesus Christ. Love yas, Jody

“ I'm an older cousin of Joseph's. My father, Joseph Fedor was my Uncle Andy Fedor's brother. I moved away from Cleveland 45 years ago but I still remember Joey as a younger cousin who would sometimes visit with his dad and sister and Aunt Mary. My condolences to those of my relatives who knew Joey so much better than I did. God bless you all with the peace and assurance that we live on after this life and will see each other again with a bright recollection of each other. My love to you all, cousin Jim Fedor

“ Losing a brother is heartbreaking. It's one of the deepest sorrows a heart can know. Words are so feeble in moments like these. Life is so precious and death like a thief. But his cherished memories live on like a legacy of love that will always be with you. May that love surround you now and bring you comfort and peace. Those we love don't go away. They walk beside us every day. Unseen, unheard but always near. So loved, so missed and dear.
